Notice Given Before Cotton Title Taken

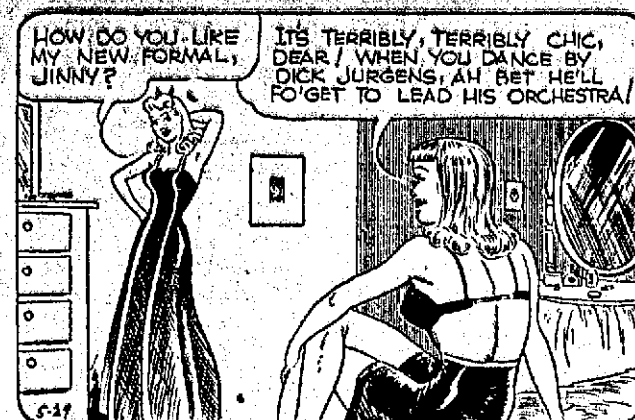

Commodity Credit Corporation to Give Farmers 10-Day Notice

The Commodity Credit Corporation will not take title to any stocks of loan cotton without giving prior public notice, County Agent Oliver L. Adams said in response to inquiries as to when the government might take title to the loan stocks of 1939, 1939 and 1940 cotton.

In the event the government should take title to any of the stocks of loan cotton, at least ten days public notice by press release will be given.

If the government should take title to loan cotton, the cotton producers would be paid any amounts by which (1) the redemption costs of their notes (which include principal, interest and carrying charges on the pledged cotton) were exceeded by (2) a fair value of the cotton at the time, which would be determined by the Secretary of Agriculture on the basis of the then prevailing average market

Sport of Kings Admits Queens

Many Women Own Racing Stables These Days

By ADELAIDE KERR
AP Feature Service Writer

The sport of kings has admitted some queens.

Today you can scarcely go to Belmont Park, or any other big track, without seeing the silks of women owners flash under the wires, scarcely refer to racing annals without hearing of victories feminine owners have won. In the last decade women have topped famous cups, hung up records and even have led the money winners.

Mrs. Anthony Pelleteri of New Orleans added to their turf glories this spring when her colt Bay View won the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap, America's richest horserace. Colts owned by three other women have won the Derby in the last decade. One of them—Mrs. Payne Whitney's Twenty Grand—held the Derby record for ten years, until this spring when Whirlaway clipped 2-5 of a second from his time. Mrs. Isabel Dodge Stone made some feminine racing history in 1934 by topping American money winners on the track with a take of more than a quarter of a million dollars. She was the first woman to top the take since Queen Anne of England topped the first purse for her sex—$50—in 1714.

Foremost among the women who are racing at Belmont today is Mrs. Payne Whitney, owner of the Green Tree Stables. Mrs. Whitney, daughter of a former Secretary of State (the late John Hay) and widow of the sportsman, Payne Whitney, is known as America's first lady of the turf. She knows and loves horses and has owned famous flat racers and steeplechasers. In her present string is the two-year-old filly, Spanish Moss, which recently won the $5,000 Fashion Stakes.

Mrs. Whitney, who was second on the list of last year's money winners, is gentle, soft-spoken, a favorite at the tracks. She breeds most of her horses at her farm in Lexington, Ky. She is less often seen at the track than she used to be, but she still takes keen interest in her horses.

Mrs. Isabel Dodge Stone, daughter of the late John Dodge of the motor car company and owner of the Brookmeade Stables, has had some striking successes in a comparatively short racing career. Her Cavalcade

Large Tea in Texarkana Honors Mrs. Weldon Glass

Mrs. Weldon Glass, who was before her May marriage, Miss Jane Orton, was honored at a beautiful tea on Tuesday afternoon by her mother-in-law, Mrs. Vernon Glass Sr., at her Texarkana home on Pine street. The home was a bower of beautiful flowers placed at vantage points throughout the reception rooms. Pastel shades were used in the flowers decorating the reception hall, and in the living room red roses, carnations, and white shasta daisies were effectively used. Pastel shades of flowers were again used in the dining room, where the center of interest was the handmade lace covered tea table centered with identical bouquets of flowers in pastel shades reflected in a mirror. White tapers in crystal holders completed the charming effect.

Guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. Joe Tyson, Mrs. Phil Dunham, Mrs. Jackson Pryor, and Mrs. Jack Harkness and were later received by Mrs. Glass, her attractive daughter-in-law, Mrs. Weldon Glass, Mrs. William Orton, mother of the

Horror of German Victory in Norway Detailed in Novel

They might just as well have fought with snowballs. That's the impression you get after reading of the Nazi horrors over Norway, but the fact is: they fought, sometimes to the last man and woman.

"Spring, 1940" (Doubleday, Doran; $2.50) is a novel by Stuart David Engstrand portraying the Nazi rape of Norway as exemplified by the fate of a simple, God-fearing, patriotic family, crushed and ground by the ideological as well as steel machines of the conqueror.

Martha Johanssen, German-born wife of Johan Johanssen, foreman of the lumber mill, awaits the return of her son, Ralph, from Germany, where he has gone to study. Ralph's German father was killed in the last war, but the boy was raised by kindly Norwegians and until Hitlerism smacked him in the face, he considered himself a son of Norway.

Ralph comes home a full-blown Nazi, snarling at his family when they say other nations and other peoples besides Germans have a place upon the earth. He works closely with local Quislings, waiting the day when Hitler's legions will arrive "to save Norway."

As a result of Ralph's treachery, one member of the family is killed and another one crippled for life. The day comes, and the account of the bringing of Nazi culture to this peaceful Norwegian town, seen thru the eyes of a little girl, stands as

SERIAL STORY

THREE TO MAKE READY

BY W. H. PEARS

YESTERDAY Tony urged League members to avoid a clash with the fraternity men, accused Big Barney Sherwood of wanting to name Cardman next president. His idea is ignored. Kilo admits like Barney is interested, enlisting he wants a president who can't handle a group, and the fraternity men close in on the hard, Paula begs Kilo to tell the truth about the scarf, to save Chris.

WHEN ENEMIES UNITE

CHAPTER XV

"YOU'RE trying to—to frighten me," Kilo accused. "Oh, Kilo, I'm trying to make you see things straight! Chris was leaving school when he was arrested. He couldn't stand having everyone think he slugged Tony. I tried to help him, but I couldn't. He needs someone else, Kilo. He needs you!"

"Why... do you tell me all this when you love him yourself?"

"I don't know," Paula said, her hazel eyes clouding. "I'm all mixed up about things. I only know I had to tell you."

Kilo seemed not to hear. Her green eyes, filled with tears, were fixed upon Paula.

"You're so decent," she said slowly.

"So are you, Kilo," Paula said. "And now's your chance to prove it."

"Paula, I—I didn't mean to get Chris in trouble. It was just that I was jealous. I was willing to do anything to keep him away from you..."

Paula tried to interrupt her, but Kilo rushed on: "I wanted Chris in the League because he was daring. Then one of the boys suggested throwing a stench bomb named after him. Later, when you told him about Uncle Barney, he came to me and said he was quitting the League."

Paula said, "Please, Kilo, there's no time now."

Kilo ignored the warning: "Chris said he'd have no part in getting Van Horn fired. But he'd promised to meet me the night of the party, and I held him to it. He begged me not to start trouble. I refused. It began to rain and I borrowed his scarf to cover my head. Chris didn't even go with me. I saw him afterward and told him how Tony had been hurt. He said he never wanted to see me again."

Paula shook the girl's shoulders. "Kilo, listen! Chris doesn't hate you. He loves you. But if you don't stop this fight he will hate you. I know Chris. Under that hard crust he's full of ideals. This is your last chance to make him respect you." "But how..." Kilo seemed bewildered. "Come out and face the boys," Paula replied. "Tell them the truth. Tell them you're willing to let Van Horn settle things." Kilo said dully, "All right, I'll go."

From the left Tony yelled, "Paula, stay inside. I'm going out and—"

But Paula and Kilo paid no heed. As they moved out the door Kilo said to one of the League boys, "Don't let Tony Beale out and don't let anyone in."

OUTSIDE the jet sky was steel-pointed with stars. In the dark silence Paula took a deep breath of cool night air and tried to quiet her pounding heart.

"Who's there?" Hal Bascomb called sharply.

A flashlight beam lanced out at them, pinned Kilo in its light. Under the silver-blond hair her face was cut clear and came sharp. A low gasp of admiration escaped Paula at the other girl's loveliness.

"We're holding a meeting here," Kilo replied. "What do you want?"

"Quit stalling," Bill Jenks growled. "If you're going to run this League bunch out of Cardman, get started."

"Is that you, Bill Jenks?" Kilo called. "I want to talk to you."

A figure detached itself from the group. "What is it, Miss Sherwood?"

"Tell them to go back," Kilo said imperiously.

"Sure, sure, I will," Jenks chuckled.

Kilo beckoned him closer. Only Paula could hear her words: "Bill, the whole thing is off. I've changed my mind."

Jenks sucked in his breath. "Say, you're kidding, aren't you?"

"I'm serious, Bill. There mustn't be a fight here."

"Well, I'll be..." Jenks exclaimed, then, "Sorry, Miss Sherwood. I've got my orders from the boss. It's too late now."

THE crowd of boys surged forward. Kilo reached out and caught Paula's hand. They stood there, two girls who a few hours ago had been enemies, facing Bascomb with a single purpose.

"Don't go in there until you've heard what I have to say," Kilo begged. "Everything that happened has been my fault. You can't beat up my friends for something I did."

"We're not going to beat them up," Bascomb said. "Not unless they fight back. We're just going to see that they don't throw any more stink bombs around Cardman. Or slug guys from behind." "Wait!" Kilo cried. "Tony Beale wasn't slugged." "Of course not! He tripped on a pin and—"

"He did trip! I was there. I know. One of the boys stood by the French doors with the stench bomb. I was behind some bushes. He was supposed to wait until I gave him the signal, but he got excited and threw it too soon. I started to run away just as Tony came out of the house. He fell over me and struck his head on the sidewalk."

"How about Chris Wentrich's scarf?" someone asked.

"I—I borrowed it," Kilo explained. "Chris was not near the party that night."

"Tell them the rest," Paula whispered.

Kilo said, "Bill Jenks, you'll lose your job for this." Then, to Bascomb: "You think he's your friend, Hal, but Big Barney Sherwood is paying him to start trouble."

"What do you say to that, Jenks?" Bascomb asked.

Jenks snorted. "Think I'd be talking like this to my boss's niece? Use the old noggin, fellows!"

"Please, Hal, listen to her," Paula said. "Kilo's telling the truth. Go back and let Dr. Van Horn settle this. If the League's willing to trust him, you ought to be."

"Say, look," Jenks said in disgust, "if you guys are too yellow to tackle this League bunch I'll go in and clean 'em out myself."

AN angry murmur went up at his words. Jenks had shrewdly chosen the sharpest weapon at hand by accusing them of cowardice. The murmur broke into shouts.

"Come on!" "Let's go!"

Bascomb and another fellow caught the two girls and lifted them out of the way. They made a rush for the barn door only to find it blocked by bales of hay.

Paula clutched Kilo's arm. "Look, over toward the road! It's a car. Maybe Dr. Lud's bringing help."

The fraternity boys were circling the barn. They found another door and threw their weight against it, but it was solidly held from within.

"Do you think it could be?" Kilo asked breathlessly.

Over the splintering of wood Paula said, "They can't make it..."

The ABC's of Crocheting

Knitting Is Based on Few Foundation Stitches

AP Feature Service

Crocheting, like knitting, is based on a few foundation stitches. First step is to learn to hold the hook and thread comfortably. Next, make the foundation stitches. Then practice until you crochet in uniform stitches. Heavy thread and a large crochet hook are good for practice. The four steps illustrated here will guide you.

1. (The chain stitch.) Take thread in your left hand, the end toward you, and catch it between the little and ring fingers. To make a loop, hold the hook in your right hand, put it under the thread between the little and middle fingers and twist the thread completely around. The twist thus made is held with the forefinger and thumb of the left hand. Wrap the main length of thread around the hook to "thread over." Now draw through the loop just formed. Pull the short end of the thread to tighten on the loop and you start the chain stitch.

2. With the loop on the hook, place the thread over the left hand and hold the hook. Wrap the main length of thread around the hook and pull through the loop. This forms the first full stitch. Repeat this chain stitch for required length of what you are making. On this foundation stitch you can make any stitch desired.

3. Single Crochet (sc) in most instructions. Skip the first chain stitch and insert the hook in the next. Wrap thread around the hook to "thread over" and pull through the chain. There should be two loops on your hook now. Thread over the hook and pull through both loops. This completes one single crochet. Now make single crochet stitches in each stitch to the end of the row. To make a second row and subsequent rows of single crochet, chain one stitch at end of row, turn your work so that the wrong side is facing you, insert hook in top of next stitch and continue as in first row.

4. As in single crochet, make a foundation of about 20 chain stitches. Wrap thread around hook to "thread over." Insert hook in fourth stitch from hook, and draw thread through. You should have three loops on your hook. Then "thread over," draw thread through two loops. "Thread over" again and pull through two loops, leaving one loop on the hook. This completes one double crochet. Continue making double crochet in each stitch to end of chain. To make second and subsequent rows, chain three stitches, turn your work. Continue along previous row of double crochet.

Woolley Meal Is Delicious

Here's One Actor Who Would Rather Eat Than Cook

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE
AP Feature Service Writer

Actor Monty Woolley is like a lot of cooks—he would rather eat than cook. But he can tell cooks a thing or two.

His descriptions of foods frequently elicit so well that song-writers pick them up and then you hear things like, "It's delightful, it's delicious, it's delicious."

Maybe he thought that up over a nerve wine, maybe over a real good pastry.

Actually, this star is pretty easy to please in the kitchen or dining room. But he will change hotels for better food.

He prefers simple things mostly. Give him good beef, loads and loads of creamed things and you make him happy.

He has a lot of cafe society friends who call him "The Beard." Some of them don't know he can cook at all. But a few of them were with him the other night after a show when he triumphantly stopped by the Shanty restaurant in New York to show them something different.

He took over the cook-it-yourself kitchen. (It was a planned job.) Out of the icebox he took potatoes previously cooked for him. He wanted something special to go with hamburgers. Here is how he explains the Monty Woolley creamed potatoes:

Bake your potatoes the day before and keep them in the ice box all night. Peel and slice, then cook potatoes in milk. When they are heated, add salt, pepper and butter. Just before serving add the faintest pinch of nutmeg.

Another of his choice recipes is Oysterplant del-Monty. Again he has a little trick for getting a different flavor. His prescription:

Wash, peel and dice oyster-plant.

one of the best bits of descriptive writing dealing with war.

It isn't the clash of mighty armies. There's none of the glory of mighty warriors. There is the account of shopkeepers, fishermen, ministers, housewives, boys and girls attempting to defend their homes and their freedom from the invader. Skillful writing discloses the incompatibility of the Nazi way of life with that of liberty-loving folk.

Ralph, torn between love of his family and childhood sweetheart, and his devotion to the theory that "German blood must rule," dies because of that conflict, leaving the conviction that hate may win temporary victories but that kindness, love and charity will never be vanquished by steel and bullets.

Boil in milk (not too heavy with cream) until tender. Add generous chunks of butter, salt and pepper and serve in the milk gravy.

Even the hamburgers had a new flavor. Here's how:

Prepare in usual way. Before putting hamburger on toasted roll, spread upper half of roll with smoked turkey paste and mayonnaise.

Birds in the United States are dropping about 50,000 a year; deaths are increasing about 20,000 annually.

Varied Uses
The prolific coconut palm furnishes island natives with wood for houses, boats and utensils; its leaves, when young, are eaten; when the leaves get old, they make hats, baskets, cloth, fans, bedding, paper, and thatch; the ribs are made into arrows, torches, and paddles; the flowers yield wine, vinegar, and sugar; the fruit is eaten, and its husk makes oil, cord, and matting.

Labor day was set aside as a day of "rest."

A year has passed since President Franklin Roosevelt made his 50,000-warplanes speech and started the U. S. defense effort rolling. Today, after conscription, production of a two-ocean navy and rapid expansion of aircraft and arms factories, defense production is swinging sharply upward. Pictographs show the progress.

Young Man: You Should Join the Air Corps

Flying Cadet D. S. Seeds from Randolph Field finds girls at University of Texas as hospitable as they are lovely. Of course, young man, these dishes probably aren't a steady diet. But they're appetizing, don't you think? For instance, young man, how would you like to have been in Aviator Seeds' shoes when he landed at Austin on the first cross-country flight for flying cadets from Randolph Field in Texas? And do you think Private Kennedy and Sergeant Moyulhan would ever have met Jane Froman, of the musical comedies, in private life? Not to mention those other three angels, who went over to Ft. Meade, Md., with Comic Ed Wynn's Broadway show to entertain Uncle Sam's boys. Defend America? Why, young man, it's a pleasure in more ways than one.

Neutrality Law to Still Stand

American Ships to Stay Out of British Ports

WASHINGTON (AP)—Contending that the neutrality act in no way infringes upon the nation's newly-reassuring policy of insisting upon the freedom of the seas, President Roosevelt disclosed Wednesday that he sees no reason for repealing or changing that law.

In addition he made it clear that despite the renewed determination to see Great Britain through to victory expressed in his speech of Tuesday night, the administration will continue to keep American flagships out of British and other belligerent ports.

While virtually the entire world excitedly argued the implications of Tuesday night's address, Mr. Roosevelt followed up with an unscheduled press conference, in which he elaborated upon some of his points and brought new factors into the discussion.

Convoys in the old sense were out-moded, he said, because while they had only submarines to deal with in the World War, merchant ships must now be protected from submarines, surface raiders and airplane bombers. The patrol ships now combining the Atlantic and endeavoring to ascertain where any submarine, plane or raider is at any given time, he said, and while they can't do it 100 per cent, they grow more effective every day.

While an overall shortage of steel is in prospect, the president reported, there is an ample supply for defense purposes. But because there is not enough to fill civilian needs, certain priorities have to be applied to the steel industry, he indicated.

The president said no additional action was contemplated at this time to implement his call for a cessation of strikes and his request that capital and labor abide by the decision of impartial boards, but he went on to say that if strikes continue, some action will have to be taken. This was not said, he added, as a threat.

Rules Vetoes by President Pro-Tem Are Valid

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Chancery Judge Frank Dodge held tentatively Thursday that vetoes by the senate president pro-tem, Willis B. Smith, of Texarkana of house bills while serving March 31 and April 1 were valid vetoes.

The two bills were legislation calling for the regulation of the initiative and referendum, and a bill which would increase sheriff fees in 26 counties.

Germans Ruin Crete Cities

Prime Minister Says Not One Stone Left Standing

LONDON (AP)—Greek prime minister Emmanuel Tsouderos, now somewhere in the Middle East, informed his legation in London Thursday that German bombers had so hammered the Crete cities of Canea, Candia and Retimo that there was "not one stone left standing."

Tsouderos alleged the German raiders "ruthlessly machine-gunned" the civilian population.

Raging fires, he declared, completed the work of destruction started by high-explosives.

Britain Loses Third Cruiser

Warship York Considered Lost in Crete Battle

LONDON (AP)—Britain's third cruiser loss in the battle for the island of Crete, destruction of HMS York, was announced by the admiralty Thursday.

The powerful 8,250-ton warship had been under repair at Suda Bay, British naval base on the embattled island, and the admiralty said "she must now be regarded as a total loss" after having been bombed again and again from the air.

Although the York normally carried about 600 men the admiralty said it had been informed of only two deaths and five injured among her crew.

AFL to Avoid Defense Strikes

Will Discipline Union Violating No-Strike Rule

By the Associated Press
The American Federation of Labor directed all its affiliates Wednesday night to refrain from striking against defense industries until all possibilities of mediation had been exhausted.

It called upon the international unions to discipline any locals which strike before government agencies have an opportunity to adjust the disputes peacefully and promised similar action itself against federal unions which do so.

In a statement, issued in Washington, the federation's executive council called attention to President Roosevelt's fireside appeal of Wednesday that labor utilize the government's conciliation and mediation machinery to avoid stoppage of defense production.

"We must do this," the council said, "We can do this, and we pledge our faith as Americans to the president that we will do it."

One Version Of Smuggling

BERN, Switzerland (AP)—Swiss bees have been "smuggling" honey out of German-occupied Alsace.

With the collapse of France last June, many Alsatian farms went to weeds. Neglected bees left their hives and abandoned their "pastures" to the Swiss bees across the Rhine.

The result was that the Swiss bees winged across the river and brought back tons of French nectar "duty free."

Farm Students to Visit Here

Agriculture Group to Stop Here on 1,000 Mile Tour

Twenty-three junior and senior agricultural students of the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture, on a 1,000-mile tour of the state to see the different types of farming areas and to study agricultural action agencies at work, will arrive in Hope June 6.

The students will travel by special bus and will be accompanied by Orville J. Hal and Philip L. Kelly of the College staff.

While in the vicinity of Hope they will observe cotton and truck farming and visit the Fruit & Truck Branch Experiment Station.

They will spend the night in Hope. George W. Ware, assistant director in charge of the branch station, has arranged for their night's lodging.

They will arrive in Hope at 3:45 June 6 and will leave at 7 o'clock the next morning.

Vichy Protests Sfax Bombing

French-British Relations Grow Dangerously Worse

VICHY (AP)—The French government announced Thursday it was formally protesting against the bombing of the French North African port of Sfax Wednesday by British warplanes.

The protest will be lodged with the U. S. Department of State for transmission to the British government, the announcement said.

French-British relations, already seriously strained, grew dangerously worse as the result of the air attack on the French African port by British warplanes pursuing a Libya-bound Italian convoy.

Two Italian vessels were hit, a French steamer was set afire, and an unspecified number of French and native casualties resulted from the attack, first outburst of warfare at Sfax.

One of the Italian ships was said to have raced for the harbor of Sfax, whereupon the British bombed the port, hitting harbor installations, a phosphate storehouse and a 4,999-ton French steamer.

One Family School on Last Frontier

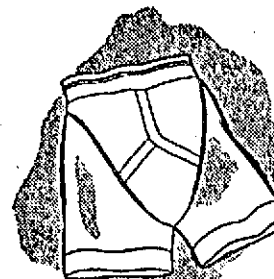

PORT TOWNSEND, Wash. (AP)—The Cassel school, maintained at an annual cost of $1,300 for the exclusive use of the Cassel family in the remote backwoods of western Jefferson county, will close this summer as an economy measure.

Seven young members of the only family residing in this far corner of the nation's "last frontier" have had the exclusive use of the school and the undivided attention of its one teacher for years. Now the only young Cassel, Viola, is being transferred to another school and the teacher is looking for a new job.

No road leads to the school, which is reached from the outside either by a six-mile trail, now badly grown over, or by crossing a river by canoe. In flood seasons weeks go by during which the canoe trip is impossible.
